

*“Once Upon a Christmas Cheery,
In the Lab of Shakhashiri . . . ”*

Bassam Shakhashiri, NSF Assistant Director for Science and Engineering Education, will weave Christmas chemistry magic—a tradition started over 160 years ago by English chemist and physicist Michael Faraday.

*Place: National Academy of Sciences Auditorium
(Enter on C St. Between 21st and 22nd)*

Date: Thursday, December 13th, 1984 Time: 7:30 p.m.

Parking: NAS Above-Ground Parking Lot (Entrance Off 21st St.) and Street Parking After 6:30 p.m.

NSF employees and families invited. All ages welcome!

Representatives from NAS, NAE, IM, OSTP, OMB, and Congressional staff invited.

Santa Claus will be there!

Capitol Christmas tree lighting same day, 5:00-6:00 p.m.

Sponsored by NSF Employees Association